

CONTENTS

Whose "Dan Tucker"?. . . . .	Curtis Owens	3
Gleanings from the 1850 Census . . . . .	James H. Siler	8
The Corn Cut Out in 1779 . . . . .		13
The Graceful World of Lloyd Owle . . . . .	Wanda Crawford	14
Finding the Good ( story ) . . . . .	Barbara Smith	20
Lost Appalachia . . . . .	Richard Relham	25
Three Poems . . . . .	Beth Wellington	28
A Choice of Tradition: Allen Tate. . . . .	Kiffin Rockwell	30
Appalachian Isolation in Perspective . . . . .	Gary S. Foster	34
The Wedding Warriors ( story ) . . . . .	Dean Cadle	48
Religious Ritual in an Absolute Predesti- narian Primitive Baptist Church. . . . .	Melanie Sovine Reed	58
Let Us Rise Now and Face Jerusalem ( fiction ) . . . . .	Betty James	65
Mrs. Fox's Riverside Cafe ( poem ) . . . . .	William Paulk	80

COVER DESIGN: Jeemes Akers

CREDITS & NOTATIONS

Jeemes Akers (front cover design, illustrations for "Lost Appalachia", "Let Us Rise Now and Face Jerusalem", and "Appalachian Isolation in Perspective") teaches history and works in publicity at Alice Lloyd College.

Doris Napier (illustration for "Finding the Good") is a native of Perry County, Kentucky, and a student at Alice Lloyd College.

James H. Siler has contributed several articles to Appalachian Heritage. He lives now in Oak Park, Illinois.

William Paulk's poem about Going Back Chiltoskey appeared in the last issue. He teaches at Western Carolina University.

Kiffin Rockwell's poems have appeared several times in Appalachian Heritage. He lives now at Chester Springs, Pennsylvania.

Beth J. Wellington's work appears for the first time in Appalachian Heritage in this issue. She lives now in Roanoke, Virginia.

Richard Relham's writings have appeared in earlier issues. He lives in Lynchburg, Virginia.

The quote in "Lost Appalachia" from JOHN BROWN'S BODY, Holt, Rhinehart and Winston, Inc., copyright, 1927, 1928 by Stephen Vincent Benet. Copyright renewed, 1955, 1956 by Rosemary Carr Benet. Reprinted by permission of Brandt & Brandt Literary Agents, Inc.