

CONTENTS

Ballad (poem)	James Still	3
Slick as a Dogwood Hoehandle: Craft in the Stories of James Still	Joe Glaser	4
Dance Down Dogfork Branch (poem)	Sarah House Tate	10
Looking for Native Ground The Poetry of Fred Chappell	Rita S. Quillen	14
My Grandmother's Presence (cantefable)	Noel Tenney	28
Telling the Bees (story)	Sharyn McCrumb	31
The Appalachian Personality Interviews with Loyal Jones and Jim Wayne Miller	Ron Larson	39
The Preacher Falls in Love	Richard Relham	55
Less Than A Mile From Home (story)	Barbara Smith	60
Two Poems: "In the Waiting Room" "The Kroger Apocalypse"	Parks Lanier	63
The Children of Blood (Chaps. vii, viii)	Betty James	65
Poem for Any Small Southern Town	Paul Rice	78
Summation (for Dorothy and Mary)	Richard Relham	79

Cover Design: Deep Summer by Joan Patchen

CREDITS AND NOTATIONS

James Still lives in Hindman, Ky. Joe Glaser teaches English at Western Kentucky University, Bowling Green. Sarah House Tate is a part of Tate, Fitzsimmons Architects, Nicholasville, Ky. Rita S. Quillen is a native of Hilton, Va. Noel W. Tenney teaches and lives at Tallmansville, W.Va. Sharyn McCrumb and her husband live in Blacksburg, Va. Ron Larson is still teaching sociology in Wytheville at the Community College. Richard Relham, though retired, keeps busy, as readers know. Barbara Smith keeps busy with her writing, family, and duties at Alderson Broaddus College, Phillippi, W.Va. Parks Lanier teaches at Radford University, Va. Betty James continues with editorial work and living in Arlington, Texas. Paul Rice lives near Asheville, N.C. and teaches at the University of North Carolina there. Debbie did the photographs for this issue. Debbie who? Why, Debra Watts, of course, from Watts Fork, who works for this magazine. Joan Patchen (cover painting) lives in Louisville, Ky. now.